

BACKGAMMON RETURNS WITH A BANG AS SOCIAL SPORT

Pastime of Gay Nineties Is Revived

By JULIA BLANSHARD
NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—America has a new remedy for boredom this winter.

In addition, it is calculated to help a girl catch a beau, to keep husbands in nights and to prevent children from leaving home.

More than that, it is the smartest thing you can serve guests at a party. It's name is backgammon. Good old stand-by game for the elite back in the gay 90's, backgammon has gone modernly 1930, is smartly democratic, and threatens the country with a vogue this winter more widespread and contagious even than miniature golf.

Society Sponsored Game
Society folks on the Riviera and the Lido last winter were responsible for the renaissance of this game. Somehow it seems to answer the modern need for thrill.

It combines the chance of throwing dice with the skill of play, which challenges the most blasé. More than that, while two people play the game—or four in some types of backgammon—as many as four others can look on in the capacity of kibitzers; and we all know how much more Americans enjoy telling folks how to do things than actually doing them, themselves.

This summer backgammon added zest to Long Island week-ends and this autumn clubs, hotels and homes are adopting backgammon as one of their chief stocks in trade.

Suburbanites Like It
Suburban communities are foregoing their rummy and going in for backgammon while riding to work and home again. Dragging out a backgammon board when a new young man calls is now considered not only a fine way to get a slant on his I. Q., but also to rate him socially. Giving a backgammon set is quite the smartest thing a hostess can do.

All good department and sports stores now carry a multitude of paraphernalia for backgammon parties. Some stores have rigged up separate little backgammon shops where you not only can purchase boards, men and dice, but such new party accessories as paper clothing sets of linen or crepe paper cloths and napkins for serving refreshments when the game is done.

Vogue Goes Strong
Backgammon china and beverage sets and modernistic smoking things with backgammon figures on them also attest the vogue.

If you would be very, very chic and take to the very game with flair, you can purchase a backgammon table with ebony legs and the smartest of inlaid tops designed for the game.

Even newer and more modernistic backgammon tables with automatic legs—when you shut one you shut all—and tops of gorgeous Chinese red or bright jade green glazed leather tops, with cork inlay for the markers.

Most of these are convertible, by lifting out the backgammon board and turning the table into a bridge table, you do happen to have a few old-fashioned games.

Sets at All Prices
There are sets of backgammon men and dice that come as high as $250. These are set in colored stones.

Others come in ebony and white, respecting the classic color for the old-fashioned game that is over 100 years of age.

No matter what color your men and dice happen to be, you usually refer to them as "black" and "white," for this same conventional reason.

This revival of an old-time game and adapting it to modern use is quite in line with other contemporary trends. Smart new costumes for women have quite a Naughty Ninety note in many of their styles.

A new-old elegance is reviving home-hospitality. The old-time waltz thrills now where the quick one-step leaves us cold. Backgammon rightly takes its place as a classic that bears a renaissance.

It appears to be about to ride the crest of popularity into becoming the great indoor American sport this winter.

MRS. MORRISON TO HEAD DRY GROUP
Mrs. Effie Morrison, Hartsville, was re-elected president of Bartholomew County Women's Christian Temperance Union convention at the annual meeting at Columbus Friday. Other officers are:

Vice-president, Mrs. Jennie Cook; Hope; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Carrie E. Armstrong, Greensburg; recording secretary, Miss Mabel Mounts, Taylorsville; treasurer, Mrs. Ida Wertz, Hartsville; L. T. D. secretary, Mrs. Nina Sharpnack, Columbus. Mrs. Morrison will be delegate to the state convention at Anderson, Oct. 10 to 13.

Weekly Meeting Slated
Weekly meeting of Omega Kappa sorority will be held at the Chamber of Commerce tonight. Miss Juanita Worth will be hostess.

THIS GAMING SET HAS SWANK

A swanky Chinese red-leather top backgammon table may be converted into a bridge table simply by lifting out the backgammon board and turning it over.

State Nurses to Convene With League at West Baden

The Indiana State Nurses Association and the Indiana League of Nursing Education will hold their annual conventions jointly at West Baden, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Members will register Thursday morning at 9. The first session, at which Mrs. Ethel P. Clarke, director of the Indiana training school for nurses will preside, will follow. Mrs. R. F. Clark, West Baden, and the officers, Mrs. Clark, Miss Frances MacMillan, secretary, and Miss Mabel McCracken, treasurer, will welcome the delegates.

The morning session will include discussions and the appointments of committees and tellers for the election of officers which will conclude the session.

In the afternoon, Miss Mary M. Roberts, editor of the American Journal of Nursing; Miss Nellie G. Brown, director of Ball Memorial hospital school for nurses, and Miss Mary T. Walsh, secretary of the Indiana state board of examination and registration of nurses will speak.

Dinner to Be Held
Thursday night the board of directors of the Indiana State Nurses' Association will hold a dinner and an advisory council meeting.

Registration of delegates of the association will be held Friday morning at 8:30. Morning session, at which Miss Gertrude Upton, president, will preside, will open at 9. Reports of officers and district chairmen will be heard.

Presidents, secretaries and treasurers of district and alumnae associations will hold round table luncheon discussions. In the afternoon there will be further discussions, followed by golf, riding, swimming, bowling and bridge.

Miss Heister to Speak
Members of the state and local Red Cross committees will meet Saturday morning, from 8 to 8:45, and association sessions will open immediately afterward. The public health section, under the chairmanship of Miss Mabel Murre, South Bend, will assume charge of the meeting.

At the afternoon session, Miss Anna Heister, professor of public health nursing at Washington university, St. Louis, will give the address. The convention will adjourn after election of officers.

Inter-Nos Club Will Celebrate President's Day
President's day will be observed by members of the Inter-Nos Club with a 1 o'clock luncheon Wednesday at the home of the president, Mrs. Ralph B. Clark, 2950 Washington boulevard.

Following luncheon an outline of the year's work and summer experiences will be given. A social hour will be held in honor of four new members, Mrs. Wallace W. Turpin, Mrs. Donald U. Bridges, Mrs. Van P. Murphy and Mrs. Charles McIlvaine.

The program for the year, arranged by Mrs. E. A. Brown, Mrs. Leonard Smith and Mrs. Robert W. Clark, is "Biographies of Women—Old Friends Through New Eyes."

The home reading list will be contemporary fiction.

Officers who are serving with the president will be: Vice-president, Mrs. H. L. Van Dorin; secretary, Mrs. H. W. Hayworth; treasurer, Mrs. G. H. Tomlinson; delegate to local council, Mrs. Van Dorin; alternate, Mrs. Frank L. Fisher; delegate to state federation, Mrs. Bert S. Gadd; alternate, Mrs. John Rusk; delegate to Seventh district, Mrs. J. L. Stacy; and alternate, Mrs. Leonard A. Smith.

GIRL SCOUT WORK TO BE DISCUSSED
The problems and progress of the Girl Scout movement in the Great Lakes region will be the basis of a special conference under the chairmanship of Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay Jr., Wayne, Ill., at the forthcoming annual convention of the Girl Scouts in Indianapolis, Oct. 1-4.

Administrative problems and achievements will be discussed, with a review of accomplishments under the new five-year development plan, now ending its first year of operation. The plan has as two of its aims the expansion of membership to half a million girls, and development of leadership necessary to keep abreast of its growth.

Society to Meet
Indianapolis Theosophical Society will hold its regular meeting at 8 tonight at the D. A. R. chapter house, 824 North Pennsylvania street. A class in elementary work will be started.

Married 69 Years
Mr. and Mrs. Amos T. Mitten, Rossville, observed the sixty-ninth anniversary of their marriage today, quietly at their home. Mr. Mitten will observe his ninetieth birthday anniversary soon.

Butler Official
Officials at Butler university have appointed Mrs. Alice Bidwell Wesenberg chairman of the committee in charge of women's social activities, working in conjunction with Mrs. Edna Christian, social director of the university.

Observe Anniversary
Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Thompson, Frankfort, celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary today at their home.

Club to Meet
Miss Edna Lamkin, 721 North Wallace street, will be hostess tonight for the regular meeting of the Halcyon Club.

Wise Wife Will Spurn Jealousy

By MARTHA LEE

Wise is the wife who realizes that only too often a husband praises things about other women he would not tolerate in his own wife.

Smooth is her life, and free from anguish and jealousy when she strikes upon the truth of that statement, which is the beginning of wisdom for her.

A man may praise the appearance of some woman whose face is plastered with liquid powder, whose eyebrows are arched to a thin sneering line, whose lips are the color of no ruby ever attained, but just let his own wife fix her face up that way and he would turn her over his knee and spank her until he had given her face a good scrubbing.

He may admire a slim sylph-like figure on some other man's wife or sweetheart, but let his own wife mince at her food and grow irritable from under nourishment and she is no end a fool and nit-wit in his eyes.

May Become Enraged
A husband may orate at length about the style and chic of some woman who has herself dressed up like a plump horse, but just let his own wife spend infinite time over her toilet (and infinite sums buying Paris gowns to look likewise) and his orations take on the tone of an enraged bull.

For men, when they become husbands, like most to have their wives "little women" who are even tempered, amiable, economical and sensible above all other things. And many a man who casts his eye at a snappy dame with a drug store complexion, peroxide hair and Pailou gowns would divorce his own wife for using lipstick or brightening up her hair a bit.

Dear Miss Lee—I have been married five years and am very much in love with my husband. I am terribly jealous of him, although I have never had any special reason to be. He always has been faithful, as far as I know.

But if he goes out some place where there is an especially attractive looking girl, I get little attention from him until he tells me it's time to go home. And the funny part of it is he always admires a type exactly opposite to mine. I am fairly good looking, but rather a quiet, old-fashioned type, and the wife he always seems to admire are dashing, slinky brunets, ultra modern in dress and make-up. And he will not allow me to use lipstick.

I can not figure out whether he wants me to be unattractive so that other men will not notice me (because there are few men who are ever attracted to my type) or whether he admires this other type of girl and has found it out too late to do anything else about it or what. Any help you can give me would be appreciated.

Only Sets and Admires
You are letting your jealousy run away with you. Your husband probably wouldn't have married a girl of this type anyway. Since you are few men who are ever attracted to my type, I am sure that you can not go far toward breaking up your home and destroying your happiness.

You may be the type that paint makes look hard instead of chic. You may have an individuality of appearance that simply does not go with modern clothes and modern manners.

Anyway, you are making yourself unhappy for no good reason at all. Forget it. If he loves you the way you are (and he wouldn't have married you if he had not) why go around trying to look and act like every girl he happens to look at twice?

GUTS SILK HOSE BILLS IN TWO
A New York fashion expert has just made a wonderful discovery. Realizing the expense of constantly buying silk hose and undergarments, she learned that with perspiration comes an oily excretion from the sebaceous glands that causes silks to rot.

Soap and water she found, were really inadequate. Only a solvent like Eucrigene could cut this film of oil. So when next washing silk hose or dainty undergarments, add a tablespoonful of Eucrigene to every quart of lukewarm, soapy water. Wash thoroughly—rinse well. Note the new cleanliness, the pleasing freshness—how the original color is revived, so easily, so quickly and with less rubbing.

After washing silk apparel by this new method, you'll be amazed at the difference in results from washing in just soap and water alone.

And when you see how many more weeks' wear you get from every pair of hose, you'll more than delight in it's real economy.

Eucrigene is unexcelled also for quickly removing all dirt and grease spots from dresses, hats, shoes, gloves, ties. Large can 35¢. Eucrigene is the world's largest selling cleaning fluid.

New Method in Teaching Music Used

A departure from older methods is represented in the introduction of class music instruction in the Y. W. C. A. education department.

Mrs. Ida S. Broo, music division head, has introduced class instruction in piano as well as fretted instruments.
